Letter From the Principal's Desk

Dear Schola Nova Families,

As we step into the New Year, we wish our Schola Nova families a year filled with calm minds, steady growth, and many occasions to witness our children's moments of pride. January gives us an opportunity to return not just to routines, but to intentions. We begin this term with a simple resolution, to guide our children with clarity, consistency, and care, helping them grow into disciplined learners, thoughtful individuals, and compassionate human beings.

With this intention in mind, we are also mindful that growth thrives in an environment where expectations are clear and shared. School policies are not meant to restrict individuality, but to create fairness, structure, and a sense of belonging for every child. When these guidelines are followed consistently, children feel secure, confident, and equally valued. We request our parents to support these policies and refrain from seeking exemptions, as even small exceptions can unintentionally send the message that rules are optional.

Simple expectations, like coming to school in proper uniform or keeping an appropriate haircut, may seem small, but they carry important lessons. Through these everyday routines, children learn respect for their school, take responsibility for themselves, and begin to understand how discipline quietly shapes character. When parents support these expectations at home, children feel reassured and clear about what is expected of them. Values are reinforced most strongly when school and home speak the same language, helping children carry lessons of respect, responsibility, and discipline into every part of their lives.

Over the coming weeks, our students will get to experience learning in new ways, through field trips and the Annual Debates. These opportunities help them explore, speak up, and reflect, developing both their confidence and their understanding of the world around them.

Our children are our pride, and their well-being—academic, emotional, and moral—remains at the heart of all that we do. Thank you for your continued trust and cooperation as we move forward into this new term with shared purpose and care.

With warm regards,
Team Schola Nova
